‘A Cup Of Focals’ – Aine Gallagher – Leabharlann na hUaimhe

The WHO Global Network for Age-friendly Cities and Communities currently includes over 1,700 cities and communities in 55 countries, covering over 330 million people worldwide. The objective of the webinar was to enhance the opportunities for a greater engagement of former WHO staff in local initiatives aimed at creating physical and social environments conducive to healthy ageing in cities and communities.

Training for Chairs and Vice Chairs of Older People's Councils – a programme of regional in-person training days has commenced for Chairs and Vice Chairs of Older People's Councils to support them in the roles in relation to representing the voice of older people in their communities, chairing and managing meetings, and broadening diversity among the membership. Across the country, there are almost 500 older people involved in Older People's Council Executive Committees and almost 7,000 in the wider membership. Older People's Councils are the recognised consultative bodies representing the older people's views in Ireland, particularly relation to local government and public services.

The 2024 annual report for Age Friendly Ireland, which includes data from the 31 local Age Friendly Programmes in each authority, shows that 33 walkability audits were carried out across the country last year, including in a racecourse, nursing homes, libraries, train stations and towns. There are now 499 Age Friendly Car Parking Spaces in Ireland, with many situated at local authority offices, libraries, tourism facilities, shopping centres and town centre locations. Greenbelt will oversee the woodland establishment process ensuring best practices in ecological restoration and sustainable forest management.

Oak, beech, hazel, and alder trees are set to be planted in the area which will recreate lost native woodland habitats, rich in biodiversity and cultural significance.

DAFM's Woodland Creation on Public Lands Scheme recognises that native woodlands are an important part of Ireland's natural, historical, and cultural heritage, and are unique in terms of their biodiversity.

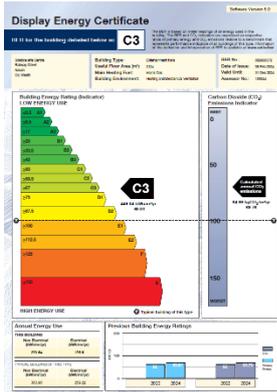

They are home to specialised woodland animals, birds, insects, and plants, including red squirrel, pine marten, great spotted woodpecker, narrow-leaved helleborine and wood millet, to name but a few.

As well as on-site biodiversity, they provide many ecosystem services, including carbon capture, the protection and enhancement of water quality, wider habitat linkage, landscape enhancement, and opportunities for outdoor recreation, which itself promotes contact with the natural world, physical and mental well-being, and outdoor learning.

Energy

Display Energy Certificates

As per national legislation, Display Energy Certificates (DECs) are required annually for all Meath County Council buildings over 250m<sup>2</sup> which are frequently visited by the public. This project was completed in February for all relevant buildings and involved analysing the energy use for the previous 12 months against the building floor area. All certificates have been issued to MCC and put on display in the relevant buildings.

Environment Awareness

Tree Week

National Tree Week 2025 was celebrated from Sunday, 9th March, to Sunday, 15th March, with the inspiring theme, "Planting Trees, Growing Together."

To mark the occasion, Meath County Council distributed an impressive 5,000 native and common saplings to community groups and schools. These saplings will support tree-planting initiatives across local areas, sports grounds, housing estates, and schools, fostering a greener and more sustainable future.

The carefully chosen, pollinator-friendly selection included Alder, Holly, Crab Apple, Rowan, Wild Cherry, Oak, Birch, Hazel, and White Thorn. These native species will not only enhance local biodiversity but also create vibrant habitats for pollinators, contributing to the preservation of our natural environment.

A wonderful step towards a greener Meath!

Free Couch Drop Off Event

Meath County Council successfully hosted the first free bulky waste collection event of the year from 10th to 16th March. This initiative took place across four recycling centers: Navan, Trim, Kells, and Thornton's Recycling Centre in Dunboyne, providing residents with a convenient and cost-free opportunity to dispose of large, unwanted items responsibly.

Building on the success of this event, the Council is committed to supporting Meath householders with additional free bulky waste collection events throughout the year, further promoting sustainable waste management and environmental care across the county.

Environment Update Waste Oil Dumping Gormanstown

On 3rd March 2025, approximately fifty 25-litre drums of waste engine oil were illegally discarded on a cul-de-sac in the Gormanstown area, near the River Delvin and approximately 200 meters from the beach.

Many of the drums were unsecured, leading to extensive oil leakage. A specialist contractor, engaged and supervised by Meath County Council, promptly removed the waste oil. By 2:30 PM on 4th March 2025, the road was reopened. The spillage was confined to a small section of an open drainage ditch adjacent to the river. Thanks to the swift response, neither the river nor the beach was adversely impacted.

As a precaution, the bed of the affected drainage ditch was excavated and removed for proper treatment and disposal.

An investigation is currently underway by Meath County Council's Waste Enforcement Department. Meath County Council are encouraging any persons with information to contact us.

STEAM kits

As part of Engineer's Week 2025, Meath County Council's Library Service launched the STEAM kits collection, which includes themed activities and books on a variety of subjects for children over eight years. The launch was held at Trim Library on Monday, March 3rd.

Thanks to funding of €15,000 from the Meta Clonee Data Centre as part of Meta's Community Action Grants, the kits are now available at all 15 libraries in Meath. These kits follow on from the successful STEAM backpacks initiative, also supported by Meta.

With nine different kits in total to choose from, each kit includes themed activities and books on topics ranging from astronomy, water, creative and robotic coding, maths, music, circuits and electricity. The kits are a great way for children and adults to make learning a fun experience together, showing how STEAM ideas are part of everyday life. This initiative is all about helping young people think critically, solve problems, and be creative.
